

The occupational Master's degree program in Agricultural and processed food products expert survey (full-time courses, 2 years of study - 120 credits) is an accredited master's program, founded in 2013. This program is part of the fundamental field of "Engineering Sciences", the Food Engineering domain. Through the educational process offered, is aimed the theoretical and practical training of the master students in order to provide specific skills and competencies for a professional or research career in one of the following fields: expertise in the meat production chain, expertise in the milk production chain, poultry expertise, expertise in the beekeeping, aquaculture and game products sector, expertise in the products of plant origin chain, expertise on quality, food safety and security assurance.